

Dear Donors,

Dec 19th, 2020

Thank you for your mentorship in helping us get Samatva moving forward on our mission to help educate needy children.

Our efforts to bring change in the lives of children, who are bright but faces economic difficulties due to lack of resources, through education can be challenging and unpredictable. With donors like you, who are persistent in their support to help needy children, we are able to continue these endeavors. I am very glad to share with you a success story.

Several years ago, we helped Maala C. from V.S. Doddi, Karnataka, a village in South India. I remember having lunch with Maala, and I could still remember that she was hesitant but very passionate about becoming a nurse. All she needed was financial support. After listening to her struggle, we decided to provide her with a scholarship to help her in nursing school.

I have attached the photographs of Maala. She is now the chief nurse at the Victoria Hospital in Bengaluru, India, and treats COVID-19 patients. She has to quarantine from her family every few weeks and gets tested for COVID-19 regularly before going back to work. You can see she is making big changes in the lives of affected humans in a time where no other profession seems as important.

Without the help of donors like you, we could not imagine bringing change into the lives of children who dream to become something despite the many difficulties they face. Perhaps Maala is a great example of what education can bring to society at large and the world as well as how important it is to identify and nurture such talents.

Thank you so much for all your generosity and philanthropy to bring a change. With kind regards,

Srini Subramaniam/Neelam Shahani
